

Great Lakes Seminar Series

Looking at Lake Erie Hypoxia From a Different Point of View

Mark D. Rowe

Assistant Research Scientist, University of Michigan, Cooperative Institute for Limnology and Ecosystem Research (CILER), School of Natural Resources and Environment

Thursday, February 16, 2017

10:30 – 11:30 am ET

NOAA Great Lakes Environmental Research Lab
Lake Superior Hall*
4840 S. State Rd. Ann Arbor, MI

Remote participation is available via webinar. To participate remotely, please register at:

<https://attendee.gotowebinar.com/register/4153799179608823555>

Once registered, you will receive a confirmation email containing information about joining the webinar.

Visit www.ciler.snre.umich.edu for more information

Important Visitor Information

All seminar attendees are required to receive a visitor badge from the front desk at the NOAA Great Lakes Environmental Research Laboratory facility. Attendees need to present a valid U.S. photo ID or green card.

If you are a Foreign National advance notification of at least 48 hours is needed so that security guidelines are followed. You will need to present your passport (a copy will NOT work).

For questions regarding building access, or assistance in obtaining Foreign National clearance, please call 734-741-2393. Email contact: Tim.Powell@noaa.gov